

Thursday 2 October 2014

Tasmanian marine ecologist receives Fellowship

A Tasmanian marine ecologist has been nationally to receive a prestigious Rod Rickards Fellowship.

The award will enable her to pursue an international research partnership into predicting the biodiversity of Antarctica's marine systems.

"I am very honoured to receive the Rod Rickards Fellowship, especially since only three were awarded from fields as diverse as medical science, chemical engineering and of Scholarship. The Fellowships honour one of the country's most prominent scientists, Professor Rod Rickards (1934-

Prof. Rod Rickards' research has been fundamental in the discovery of compounds of medical, biological, agricultural and veterinary importance.

Information released by:

School of Journalism, Communications and Media Arts, UQ

Phone: Craig Macaulay 03-6226 6683 or 048 800 5752

Email: Craig.Macaulay@utas.edu.au