The data also allows people to look at the interaction of, say, fishing and marine mammals as they feed offshore, and how fishing is impacting on the different eco-regions of the world.

For example, a major CSRO-led international study, published this month in The Lancet Planetary Health, used the data as part of an analysis of the global structure of agriculture and nutrient rofessor Watson said.

The Scientific Data paper is research is available at https://doi.org/10.1038/sdata.2017.39 and the database can be found at https://dx.doi.org/10.4226/77/58293083b0515