

Monday, 29 May 2023

Making science accessible to enquiring young minds is in new IMAS exhibition

Children have helped researchers communicate their Antarctic and Southern Ocean science especially for enquiring young minds – and it's the focus of a new exhibition opening today in Hobart at the IMAS gallery.

“This exhibition is about turning the spotlight on Antarctica and the Southern Ocean, to highlight how important these remote places are as global climate drivers, and the changes th